A Hard One to Crack. Those Republican journals of the North which have committed themselves to the theory that every reference to the abuse of Southern colored voters is "bosh" and "waving of the bloody shirt," are about compelled to eschow all allusion to the testimony Leing taken concerning the Copish county and Danville outrages, for the reason that that testimony gives most abundant and positive proof that there are still many portions of South in which the political mainstay of the white Democrats is terroism, kept at red-hot heat during every campaign by murders and whippings and all manner of ontrages. It is further demonstrated by these irvestigations that the Southern Democrats have not the least intention of changing their political habits. Their testimony on this head is a frank as it is brutal. One "leading citizen" unhesitatingry declared that he and his friends preferred bulldozing to letting the colored vote count. Another witness confessed to having voted for Wheeler, the murderer of Matthews, for alderman, after he committed that crime, but intimated that he did not regard the killing as murder, and would only admit that Whee'er might perhaps have been guilty of "an indiscretion." This is what the cowardly, deliberate assmation of a man by his intimate friend, in obedience to the mandate of a secret organization, is called in Copiah county, and that this is a common sentiment there is substantiated by the fact that another witness, who was bold enough to characterize the deed as a "cowardly murder," was threatened with death

The general tone of the witnesses, when they are white men, is in fact one of cool indifference to what is thought of their peculiar political methods, joined with as cool a determination to perserve in them. Now whoever pretends that there facts and admissions We make a specialty of First-class are not both legitimate and neces-ary must ignore the relation of such facts Gathright's Patent Men's to National politics. The question of the Presidential election is a question of the votes of the states. If any number of states are made to return electors not chosen by the voters of the districts concerned, the whole result of the election is hable to be vitated, and CASH DEALERS will find it to their the popular choice for President overinterest to see our stock and get prices borne by force and fraud. It is of record that this has been already attempted twice by the Southern Democrats. The pretense that Tildes had a larger popular vote than Hayes could only be supported by ignoring the suppression CIGARS, TOBACCO of the colored Southern vote in half a dozen states; and so long as terrorism and outrage are permitted to dominate Southern politics, there can be no security for an orderly, lawful and honest Presidential election. Just so long the Northern voters will be playing against antagonists who have "stocked"the cards. This consideration is wholly apart from that of the country's duty to protect the co'ored citizen in the enjoyment of his political rights, which must be recognized. But the too fastidious contemmers of the "bloody shirt" in politics must sacrifice the very essence of all political action in order to obtain standing ground for their eccentric doctrine. Those, on the other hand, who realize the duty of protecting the colored voter, and of securing to the North the just potentiality of its suffrage, will accord the proper weight to the evidence of Southern lawlessness and political usur-

Democratic Inconcis ency.

The Democratic campaign committee has held a meeting, and organized for the presidential contest. Only three months ago, a Democratic congress met in Washington and organized for this same contrst. Then Carlisle was made the exponent of the policy to pursue to wrest victory from the Republican party, and "tariff reform" was to be the chibboleth of the campaign.

The Democratic party is nothing if not inconsistent, halting undetermined. Three months only have passed since the Democratic party organized the Forty-eighth congress on a free trade All work intrusted to us will receive basis, with Carlisle as speaker and Morrison as chairman of the ways and committee, and Morrison's "horizontal reduction of the tariff" is the intelleetual and economical jewel extracted from the crucible or thought by the free traders. But on exposure, it is at once dimmed, and its luster fades. Moreover, three months have sufficed to weigh Carlisle and Morrison, and the analysis of their crystallized ideas on the tar'ff, and "the heft" of these statesmen themselves, seem unsatisfactory to their party, even. The Democratic congressional committe so declare, apparently.

On organizing for work they elect a majority of tariff Democrats as members of the executive and finance committees—the responsible committees—and according places only to a beggarly few of the tariff reformers." This action can be taken, as we have said, as an exhibition of repentance at so irretrievably committing the party by Carlisle's election, or as a manifestation of disgust at the Carlisle-Morris son style of statesmanship; or, again, as portraying the usual Democratic character of attempting to be all things to all men. But, however, the action of the Democratic party may be interpreted in congress and by the acts of the congress, ional committee, it shows Democracy to be the same now as ever, unstable and unworthy of trust .- Kansas City
